

Victorian Aboriginal Community Controlled Health Organisation

Aboriginal Health Information Officer

- Unique opportunity to join a cutting edge team
- This is an identified position, open to Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander applicants only
- 6 months maximum term with possibility to extend

VACCHO is the peak body for the health and wellbeing of Aboriginal people in Victoria and champions community control and health equality for Aboriginal communities. We are a centre of expertise, policy advice, training, innovation and leadership in Aboriginal health. VACCHO advocates for the health equality and optimum health of all Aboriginal people in Victoria.

This is a unique opportunity to contribute to the sustainability and effectiveness of Aboriginal Community Controlled Health Organisations in Victoria by utilising data to drive continuous improvement and ensuring a focus on cultural safety and engagement.

This is a varied role where you will be analysing population health data, supporting clinicians and medical teams to improve their quality of patient care, running webinars, stakeholder engagement, developing practical resources and building evidence basis that will contribute to improving Aboriginal health in Victoria.

To be successful in this role you will need:

- Strong technology skills
- Ability to analysis and interpret data
- Ability to building and maintain great working relationships with a range of stakeholders

Experience working with Aboriginal organisations, communities and individuals in culturally appropriate ways is essential.

If this sounds like the job you are looking for then you can download the Position Description from our website www.vaccho.org.au/jobs.

To apply please e-mail a copy of your resume and written responses addressing the selection criteria identified in the PD to employment@vaccho.org.au.

For queries about the position please contact Paula Jones-Hunt on 9411 9411. Applications close on Monday 6th February.

